

WEE CORPORATE LAW LLC

Advocates & Solicitors | 9 Raffles Place, Singapore 048619

Matter MAT-2026-0654 — Solstice Instruments Pte Ltd — Channel Partner Framework Deed

From: Rina Devanathan (Head of Legal, Solstice Instruments) <r.devanathan@solsticeinstruments.com>

To: Jonathan Wee <jwee@weecorp-law.com.sg>

Date: 20 January 2026

Subject: Channel partner deed — counterparty template

Jonathan,

We are taking on the Singapore channel rights for Aurelian Scientific's analytics range. We are the buying side — we take the product, we carry the stock, we service the end users here.

Their counsel drafts on a European template and insists on their own vocabulary throughout. They call it a Channel Partner Framework Deed. There is no clause called 'limitation of liability' — it is 'Financial Limits'. The indemnity is a 'Hold Harmless Undertaking'. Termination for convenience is a 'Discretionary Exit Right'. The default clause is 'Events of Non-Performance'. Exclusivity is 'Channel Primacy'.

They will not change the labels. Can we work with that?

Rina

From: Jonathan Wee <jwee@weecorp-law.com.sg>

To: Rina Devanathan <r.devanathan@solsticeinstruments.com>

Date: 21 January 2026

Subject: RE: Channel partner deed — counterparty template

Rina,

The labels do not matter. What matters is that the substance is there and enforceable under Singapore law, and that each of their defined terms is tied down precisely so there is no argument later about what a 'Financial Limit' actually limits.

This is in substance an exclusive distributorship agreement drafted from the distributor's side, which is exactly the mandate we do most often. We will map their vocabulary onto our standard checklist and make sure nothing is missing behind an unfamiliar heading.

One practical note for our own file: because this document uses none of the usual terminology, it will be effectively invisible to anyone in the firm searching our system for a distributorship precedent. I will ask Ramesh to record a mapping note on the file so that it can be found.

Jonathan