Subject: Aurora JV — shareholders agreement

Jonathan,

The collaboration term sheet with Trashi Digital was signed on 30 June. We are now incorporating the JV vehicle (Aurora Ventures Pte Ltd) and need the shareholders agreement drafted off the term sheet.

Key points from the term sheet that must carry through: (i) 65/35 shareholding in our favour; (ii) five-director board, we nominate three, Trashi nominates two, chairperson nominated by Trashi with no casting vote; (iii) reserved matters requiring unanimity; (iv) a deadlock mechanism with an independent valuation and a reciprocal put/call; (v) a three-year lock-up followed by a right of first refusal; and (vi) non-competition for two years post-exit.

One thing I want you to tighten: the term sheet deadlock language was drafted quickly and I am not comfortable that a party could simply refuse to approve anything and then force a buy-out at a depressed valuation. Please build in protection against a manufactured deadlock.

Priya

Priya,

Noted. Ramesh will have a first draft to me by 14 July and to you and Trashi's counsel by 16 July. On your deadlock point — the usual fix is an express anti-artificiality carve-out: a deadlock is disregarded where a party is voting against a proposal principally to frustrate the proper and efficient conduct of the business, and the proposal is not contrary to that party's significant business interests. I will draft it that way and we can defend it in negotiation.

Two confirmations needed: (1) is the S$180m aggregate capital commitment figure from the term sheet still current, and (2) do you want the management services fee to Maximus's subsidiary at 3% of gross sales included in this agreement or left to a separate services agreement?

Separately, your finance team asked again about the warehouse sublease in Tuas. That is a different matter and we will open a file for it after closing — nothing urgent.
